FISHBACK AT DANVILLE.

Common Sense as Well as Eloquent and Patriotic Address by the Indianapolis Lawyer. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

DANVILLE, Ind., May 30.—Rain somewhat marred the memorial exercises here to-day. but the crowd was never larger and there never was a more general suspension of business. The speaking was held in the courthouse, where the oration of the day was delivered by Hon. W. P. Fishback, of Indianapolis. L. J. Rothschild, of Indianapolis, spoke on behalf of the Sons of Veterans, and Mrs. Alice Pike, of this city, spoke for the Woman's Relief Corps, in honor of the dead in unknown graves. Following 1s Mr. Fishback's address, which was, at times, received with great outbursts of applause:

In the presence of this sacred and silent dust, is it becoming in us who live and are free, and happy, and prosperous, mainly, if not wholly, because these who are now dead once lived and freely gave their youthful lives for us—does it become us to look into the faces of our happy children, to survey our fertile fields, to count our cash and clutch our money bags, and debate whether we are not in danger of dealing too liberally with the widow and orphan and the surviving and disabled comrades of the heroic dead? Is it creditable in a Republic of 65,000,-000 freemen to call for the apothecary's scales and weigh its dollars against the privations, sacrifices and lives of its benefactors! For the young, for the thoughtless, for the ignorant, for the new generation, to whom have come the op-portunities and responsibilities of the present, for those who have not taken time to listen to the story of the war for the Union, there may be some apology: but even they should learn and remember that nations who forget the lessons of the past, and the sacrifices of their founders and preservers, cannot prosper. Nations, as well as men, must respond to the inexorable sanctions of the moral law. The cause for which these men died was no ordinary cause. The war in which they enlisted was no ordinary war. Foreign wars, wars of conquest, wars of aggression, wars waged to secure reparation for wounded national honor, wars to vindicate the rights of citizens who may have been maltreated on the high seas or in foreign ands-such wars may be just or unjust, and patriotic citizens may honestly differ in opinion as to the merits of such controversies. Such wars may bring the flush of pride and indignation to our cheeks or cause us to blush and hang our heads in sname. The sentiment, once so rife: "Our country, may it always be right; but our country, right or wrong," comes with a strong appeal to the sense of national pride, and while the soldier who goes to battle under his country's flag in an unjust war ranks justly as a patriot, it must be admitted that the souls of the men of 1776, at Vailey Forge, and the men of Gettysburg and Shiloh were touched to finer issues than any that were evoked by the wars of 1812 and 1846. Human conduct in men and nations is measured in the sight of God and good men by the motive which inspires it.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN 1846 AND 1861. What moral obliquity can so pervert the mental vision of man that it can see no difference in the motive or merit of the wars of 1846 and 1861? The avowed purpose of the annexation of Texas, and the consequent war with Mexico-its ruling motive, was to extend the area of human slavery. It was a war in the interest of cruelty, cupidity and greed, a war in the interest of barbarism. It was a slaveholders' war, which led, naturally and inevitably, to a slaveholders' rebellion. Mr. Calhoup, who prided himself upon being the auther of the whole scheme of annexation, frankiy, said that the object of it was to furnish territory out of which new slave States could be carved to counterbalance the political influence of the new free States of the West-so as to maintain what he was pleased to call "the equilibrium between freedom and slavery," and continue the Nation half slave and half free, keeping us forever a divided house. Mr. Lincoln and other wise men saw and said that this was not to be. Grant, who served in both wars, and won fame and pronotion in the Mexican war, was who expressed his opinions without fear and without reserve. Speaking of this annexation scheme he said: "For myself, I was bitterly opposed to the measure, and to this day regard the war which resulted as one of the most unjust ever waged by a stronger against a weaker nation. It was an instance of a republic follow-ing the bad example of European monarchies, in not considering justice, in their desire to acquire additional territory." Again he said: The Southern rebellion was largely the outgrowth of the Mexican war. Nations, like individuals, are punished for their transgressions. We got our punishment in the most sanguinary and expensive war of modern times." Such was the deliberate judgment of Grant, as it stands and as it will forever stand, recorded in those imperishable annals "written as if in star-fire and immortal tears," a work which fitly ended and crowned his great career. That judgment has been accepted as final in the court of history by the civilized world. It is a judgment which can neither be impeached nor reversed, nor modified by anything that may be said or done by caballing politicians or the puny voices of pigmy editors, who were mewling and puking in their nurses' arms when Grant and the grand army were battling for the Nation's life. Let those who will assemble about the dismantled shrine of human slavery, where the whip, and chain, and auction block lie dishonored in the dust with the slaveholders' god; but humanity, the civilized world, the poets and the historians of all time will bass by, and linger lovingly over that page in our country's annals which recounts the story of Lincoln and Grant, of Morton and Sheridan, and of Sherman and Thomas, and they will tell how they and their brave followers made the slave a free man and saved the Nation. On this hallowed ground, on this sucred day, in the presence of the honored dead, in the presence of their widows and orphans and surviving comrades, I here utter a solemn protest against this "good Lord, good devil" sentiment which insists upon calling evil good and darkness light. Rather than commemorate by stone, or brass, or inscriptions our country's shame, let us with faces averted walk backward as did the

THE MALIGNANT LIBEL.

Another thought may be fittingly expressed here. There never was a more cruel and malignant libel than that which characterizes the Grand Army of the Republic as a band of marauders, organized to loot the Nation's treasury. Take a thousand of the least disreputable stock jobbers of Wall street, or a thousand manipulators of the markets from the wheat pit, those troublers of the land's commercial peace, stand them in line and confront them with a regiment taken at random from the ranks of the Grand Army, and tell me, my carping friend, to which of these would you most willingly commit the defense of your dearest interests if they should be in peril from foreign or domestic foel Is it fair to say that, because in an army of a million men, coming from all the walks of life, some are not honest, all are therefore corrupt? We have shysters in the legal profession, quacks in medicine, wolves the legal profession, quacks in medicine, wolves in sheep's clothing among the clergy, rascals in the cushloned pews of our churches,—does it follow that there are no honest attorneys, no skilled physicians, no faithful priests, no sincere Christians in our churches! Let us be fair; at least, let there be some show of decency in our judgments. It is much easier to denounce than to discriminate much easier to denounce than to discriminate. We should rid our minds of the notion that we are bestowing alms when we give pensions. It would be much cheaper, say some economists, to herd the soldiers' widows and orphans and the disabled veterans into some State or national corral, where provender, and shelter, and cloth-ing can be furnished them until they die. My fellow-citizens, we need these old veterans, with their cork legs and empty sleeves, and canes and crutches, in the households where they belong. They are useful object lessons for the instruction of our children. Let them there tell of their marches and battles, their deeds of bravery, their gratulate him on his nomination for the presidency in 1888, General Harrison said: "It was no sordid impulse, no hope of spoil that induced these men to sunder the tender associations of home and forsake their business pursuits to look into the grim face of death with unblanched cheeks and firm and resolute eyes. They are the kind of men who draw their impulses from the high springs of truth and duty. The army was great in its assembling. It came with an impulse that was majestic and terrible. It was as great in its muster-out as in the brilliant work which had been done in the field. When the war was over, the soldier was not left at the tavern. Every man had in some humble place a chair by some fireside where he was loved, and toward which his heart went forward with a quick step." We owe it to ourselves, to a proper sense of self respect and justice to see to it that none of these who, by any mischance or fortune, by disease or weakness or privation of any sort, have need of aid to make them comfortable, shall be sufferings, their fortitude and their victories. We need these lessons to show us the wickedness of a war to destroy the Union, and what it cost to save that Union. Addressing a com-sent to the poor house as tramps and beggars. In dealing liberally with them, the Nation is simply giving them what is their just due, and let it be given ungrudgingly. FROM THE DEAD TO THE LIVING. The Union saved from the perils of war, new duties now confront us. Turning from the dead to the living, this is a good time to ask ourselves how we, the men of to-day, are responding to the call to the high duties and responsibilities of citizenship. Soon after the close of the war Mr. James Russell Lowell wrote these words, which come to us with renewed emphasis to-day: "The war which established our position as a vigorous nationality, has also sobered as. A nation, like a man, cannot look death in the eye for four years without some strange reflections, without arriv ing at some clear consciousness of the stuff it is made of, without some great moral change. Such a change, or the beginning of it, no observant person can fail to see here. Our thoughts and our politics, our bearing as a people, are assuming a manlier tone. We have been compelled to see what was weak in democracy as well as what was strong. We have begun obscurely to recognize that things do not go of themselves, and that popular government is not, in itself, a panacea, is no better than any other form except as the virtues and wisdom of the people make it so, and that when men undertake to do their own kingship they enter upon the dangers and responsibilities, as well as the privileges, of There is danger in this pushing, prosperous time, when we are so constantly and completely engrossed in domestic business and cares, that these great duties may be neglected. Here, where so much is given to the individual, much should also be required. Good laws will not avail unless their administration is in good hands. Institutions do not perform their functions automatically. Nothing can absolve the individual citizen from the duty of constant vigilance. So perfect a thing as Christianity would languish if good men did not proclaim its teachings and live Christian lives. So the republican form of government, the best the wit of man has yet devised, though now in the second century of its experiment on this continent, is still in the experimental stage. Compared with other nations that have existed, and prospered, and perished, we are a mere infant in its swaddling clothes. But what may we not hope for the future of an infant whose baby hand, thrust from its cradie, has wrought so many wonders. We came out of the revolution a Nation; we

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May So.-Besides being Decoration day this was also the occasion of the unveiling of the soldiers' monument constructed and donated to the city by the Hon. John H. Winterbotham, in memory of the soldiers of Indiana. The day was beautiful, and people came from all parts of northern Indiana to attend the unveiling. Immediately after dinner a grand parade was formed. The procession consisted of military and civic organizations from various places and the public and parochial schools of the city, and was fully two miles long. The exercises at the monument commenced at So'clock and 12,000 people were in the park. Major W. R. McClaughtey, chief of police of Chicago, delivered the principal address and presented the monument to the city on behalf of Mr. Winterbothom. Mayor M. T. Krueger accepted the gift on behalf of the city, and turned it over to the care and keeping of George V. Rawson Post, No. 46, G. A. R. The monument was unveiled by Genevieve Mott, little granddaughter of Mr. Winterbotham, and was formally dedicated by the G. A. R. post.

Mayor H. W. Johnson delivered an eloquent dedicatory address. Music was furnished for the occasion by the Ames Union Band and a chorus of 125 school children. The monument is a thing of grace and beauty. It is constructed of gray granite, and is sixty-two feet high. The base of the pedestal is sixteen feet square. The tall shaft is surrounded by a beautiful bronze statue of "Victorious Peace," holding in her uplifted right hand an olive branch. On the south side of the base is a tablet bearing the donor's name, and on the opposite side is the inscription: "In memory of the soldiers of the civil war who gave their service to perpetuate the union of the States." Around the shaft, just above the base, is a cylindrical bronze die containing many figures representing the rallying of the people to the first call. The monument cost $15,000, Hon. Jno, H. Winterbotham is one of Michigan City's oldest and most influential citizens. He served two terms in the State Senate and has a wide acquaintance in this and other States. During the late war he did a great deal toward aiding the Union soldiers. Monday Was Observed at Salem.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. SALEM, Ind., May 30 .- Owing to the fact that the Grand Army and Sons of Veterans wished to assist in decorating the soldiers' graves at the National Cemetery, at New Albany, to-day, Monday was observed as decoration day here. A large number of old soldiers and citizens assembled at 1:30 o'clock. Samuel Reid Post, G. A. R., and visiting comrades were out in full force. and led the procession, headed by the K. of P. Band. Following came the children, carrying flowers, riding in wagonettes, Corps, in carriages. The B. T. Pace Camp. Sons of Veterans, with a military band, came next, with their new uniforms and arms. Citizens in carriages and other vehicles followed, making a procession over a half mile long. Commander Overman Called the meeting to order at Crown Hill Cemetery, and delivered the address of welcome. Rev. M. M. C. Hobbs led in prayer. The Woman's Relief Corps held an interesting service of song, and decorated a monument for the unknown dead. B. T. Pace was the speaker of the day. Col. S. D. Sayles, Judge S. B. Voyles and Rev. Hobbs also spoke. The meeting ended with strewing the flowers and firing a salute over the graves.

Salute Over 100 Graves.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. WABASH, Ind., May 30 .- Factories all shut down to-day, business houses closed and the display of bunting was generous in all parts of the city. At 10 o'clock the graves of the soldiers in the old and Hebrew cemeteries were decorated without any formal ceremonies, and at 1 o'clock a vast gathering at the courthouse formed in line and marched to Falls Cemetery. The procession was headed by the Wabash City Band, and in the parade were Wabash Canton Patriarchs Militant, Wabash Lodge Knights of Pythias, Wabash Tent Knights of the Maccabees, the Milford (Ind.) band, Wabash German band, Wabash Light Infantry, James H. Emmet Post, G. A. R., Sons of Veterans, children with flowers, citizens in carriages and on foot. At the cemetery flags and flowers were placed on the tombs of one hundred soldiers. A salute was fired by the light infantry, Rev. D. D. Speicher offered prayer and ex-Congressman James T. Johnston, of Rockville, was introduced and delivered a fine tribute to the soldier dead. Capt. Howe McGuire called the roll of the deceased veterans and Mrs. H. F. Kidd spoke on "The Unknown Dead."

All United in Honoring the Dead. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. GREENFIELD, Ind., May 30 .-- Decoration day was observed here as usual, and there would have been a tremendous crowd except for the threatening weather of the morning and the rain of the afternoon. Dunbar Post, G. A. R., of this city, met at the post hall, and, under charge Marshal of the Day R. A. Black, marched to the Masonic Hall, where an eloquent address was delivered by Kev. D. R. Van Buskirk, of Indianapo is. There was music by the Greenfield Cornet Band and a quartet composed of Dr. J. W. Sparks and Frank Rhoadarmer, Mrs. Douglas Beckner and Miss Libbie Price. A Memorial-day essay, written by Miss Ada Fish, was, in her absence, read by Mrs. Charles Matthews. Dr. War-R. King is post commander, and had charge of the exercises. At the close of the speaking the G. A. R. marched to the two cemeteries, where the graves of the dead soldiers were decorated with wreaths

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., May 30 .- At 9 o'clock this morning the Memorial-day procession was formed here, consisting of the Noblesville military band, followed by forty girls dressed in white bearing flowers for decorating the graves of soldiers. Next in line were members of the local tribe of the I. O. R. M., then Knights of Phythias with their Uniform Rank, followed by Lookout Post, No. 133, G. A. R., and the Women's Relief Corps. A long line of citizens in carriages finished the grand parade that visited the different cemeteries, where the ritualistic ceremonies of the G. A. R. were executed. From the cemeteries the people went to the courthouse to hear an address by the Hon. C. H. Maxwell, of Ohio. All business was suspended and all public buildings were decorated with flags and bunting.

In Rain and Hail,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ANDERSON, Ind., May 30. - Decorationday services in this city were seriously interrupted by a heavy downpour of rain, which lasted over two hours, at hour designated for forming parade. As a rule factories, business houses and the banks were closed. The business center of the city and the private residences were universally draped in national colors. The Memorial address was delivered by Father F. C. Weichman, a former pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, of this city. The address was a splendid tribute to the soldier dead, and won many encomiums. Details of Major May Post visited the cem-

COLUMBUS, Ind., May 30 .- From 10 until 4 o'clock to-day almost every business house in the city was closed, owing to the Decoration day exercises. At 10 A. M. the graves of soldiers buried in the Guarland Brook Cemetery, a mile east of the city. were decorated. At 2 P. M. a large crowd gathered at the courthouse and marched to the City Cemetery, where the graves of all the soldiers were decorated. The P. O. S. of A., the Red Men and G. A. R. and citizens to the number of two thousand participated in the exercises. Attorney W. J. Beck, of this city, a member of the Sons of Veterans, delivered an address.

Not a Grave Was Missed.

Special to the Indianapolis Jaurnal. FARMLAND, Ind., May 30.-Memorial-day exercises were held in usual style, with a large turnout. The line of march was formed in front of G. A. R. Hall, at 9:30 A. M., and marched to Woodlawn Cemetery. near Maxville, where appropriate exercises were held. Moses Heron Post, G. A. R., W. R. C. and hundreds of citizens were in the column, and not a grave was allowed to be missed. Appropriate exercises were held at Windsor, in this county, this afternoon. and at Mount Pleasant an all-day meeting was held, Rev. R. D. Spellman, of Winchester, being the speaker.

Gave the Whole Day to It.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MARION, Ind., May 30 .- To-day has been devoted almost entirely to Memorial observances. Business was suspended and this morning the different companies of the Soldier's Home were inspected in the parade grounds and a line of march taken to the burial grounds, where appropriate exercises were held. Chaplain L. F. Cole delivered the memorial address. This afternoon the G. A. R., military and other organizations of the city, followed by a long line of citizens in carriages, marched to the I. O. O. F. Cemetery, where the usual Memorial-day observance was held. Judge St. John made an eloquent address.

Marred by the Orator.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. HARTFORD CITY, Ind., May 30 .- Hon. H. B. Sayler, of Huntington, made a prohibition stump speech at the opera house today. He had been invited to make the adgress before the old soldiers, and those who assisted at Decoration-day services. His speech has provoked the people of Hartford City, and they are justly indig-nant. Many left the opera house in disgust, and Sayler is held in contempt for | line of march led to the cemetery and dec-

Captain McCiurg Was Marshal of the Day.

Special to the Indiapapolis Journal. MUNCIE, Ind., May 30.-Col. John H. Grover to-day made the principal memorial address at Beech Grove Cemetery to a multitude of people. Capt. J. H. McClurg, of the Times, was marshal of the day. He piloted Company G. Thirty-sixth Indiana Volunteers, through the war. Most all the big mills and factories closed, and business was practically suspended throughout the city in the afternoon. Rev. H. T. Buff, of the Central Christian Church, delivered the memorial address. Several secret societies took part in the procession.

The Hovey Monument Not Complete.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. MOUNT VERNON, Ind., May 30.-Decoration day exercises here were attended by a large gathering of people, members of the G. A. R. from neighboring cities, together with local military organizations assisting in the exercises. Gen. J. B. Cheadle, exdepartment commander, was the orstor of the day. Gen. M. D. Manson and W. W. Roberts were also here and made short speeches. The unveiling of Governor Hovey's statue did not take place, as the mon-ument is not ready. This will be done at some future date.

The Day at Brazil,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. BRAZIL, Ind., May 30.-Long before 1 o'clock to-day, the time set for the Decoration day parade, every business house in Brazil had been decorated and an immense crowd had congregated. The procession was led by the Brazil band and marched to the cemetery. Several secret orders par-ticipated in the parade. When the cemetory was reached a choir opened the exercises by singing patriotic songs, after which an address was delivered by Hon. E. S. Holliday, of this city. After the oration the graves were strewn with flowers.

Oration by Col. Z. A. Smith,

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. ROCKVILLE, Ind., May 30.—Colonel Z. A. Smith, of the Indianapolis Journal, made the Decoration-day address here to-day. He took up the history of the war, showing the loss of the great rebellion to the Republic. His tribute to the dead soldiers was touching. The veterans, headed by little girls bearing flowers, and followed by citizens, marched to the cemetery. Here the ritual of the Grand Army was spoken. and roses, and lilies, and myrtle, and ivy were strewn on the graves of the heroes.

Chaplain Reed Spoke at New Albany. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

GONE TO HUG ISLAND

President Cleveland Steals Away from the Capital on Decoration Day Evening. WASHINGTON, May 80,-President Cleveland, accompanied by L. Clark Davis, of Philadelphia, left Washington for Hog island, Virginia, over the Pennsylvania railroad, at 5:40 this afternoon. There were no other persons in the party, except a colored porter. The President is due at Hog island at 5 o'clock to-morrow. He occupies a combination dining, sleeping and obersvation car. His car will be switched off at Wilmington, Del., and will go south to Exmore, Va., whence he will proceed by boat to Hog island. The President's determination is to return to Washington Saturday evening. The President arrived at the station at 5:30 and made his way, accompanied by Mr. Davis and a valet carry-ing his hand satchel, to his car, almost un-noticed. He was enveloped in a gray linen duster and wore a gray slouch hat, pulled the car he took a seat near the door, lit a cigar, and, with his back to the window, sent smoke curling out the rear door of the car, which was left open, Hundreds of people passed, but no one, saids from the station officials and a watchful reporter, seemed to be aware of the presence of the President of the United States.

Expect to Catch Drum and Sea Trout. WILMINGTON, Del., May 30.-President Cleveland and L. Clark Davis, of the Philadelphia Public Leader, arrived here at 9:12 P. M., to-night, from Washington. They were joined here by Dr. J. D. Bryan, of the New York Board of Health. Exmore will be reached about 2:30 to-morrow morning. Mr. Davis, in replying to questions, said: "There is no one but the President and myself in the car, but Dr. Bryan will join us here. We will return on Saturday. We are on a fishing trip, and expect to catch drum and sea trout. We may shoot some

Will Have a French Cook,

CAPE CHARLES, Va., May 30 .- Extensive preparations have been made to entertain the President in a quiet, but pleasant, way. A French cook from Philadelphia, accompanied by two assistants, arrived at the clubhouse, early this morning, with supplies, and will have charge of the kitchen during the President's stay. The steamer Sunshine is now standing at Willis wharf, near Exmore Station, ready to leave for Broadwater island on the arrival of the President's train.

Dissected Their Subjects on the Roof, NEW YORK, May 30,—George Bertell, while working yesterday on top of a building on West Thirty-sixth street, was horrified to find the mutilated bodies of four children on the roof of No. 400. Bertell rushed into the street and called a policeman. Returning, he and the officer were met at the door of No. 400 by Dr. Ellsworth Elliott. The policeman asked the physician about the bodies, and Dr. Elliott went down to the West Thirtieth-street station to explain matters. The Doctor is assistant demonstrator of anatomy in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. Be has a private class, which meets at his house and works there. The students did dissecting on the roof and left their subjects there.
